The biggest festival, National Naadam, takes place in the Mongolian capital, Ulaanbaatar, at the National Sports Stadium during the National Holiday from July 11 to 13. It kicks off with a grand opening ceremony showcasing dancers, athletes, horse riders, and musicians, followed by the start of the competitions.

The competitions are mainly horseback riding. Naadam, the most widely watched festival among Mongols, is believed to have existed for centuries in various forms. Its origins trace back to activities like military parades and sporting events, including archery, horse riding, and wrestling, which were traditionally held to celebrate occasions such as weddings or spiritual gatherings.

Why do we love this trip?

- Learn unique Mongolian Culture
- Discover Nomadic lifestyle
- Spot Wild and Domestic animals
- Visit and meet real Nomads
- Feel true silence and wild nature
- Enjoy fresh and clean air
