

How to Check Absconding Status in the UAE: A Complete Guide

Steps to Verify Your Absconding Status in the UAE

If you're residing in the UAE and you suspect that you may have been marked as an absconder or have concerns about the status of an absconding case, it's essential to act quickly.

Absconding in the UAE refers to situations where employees or individuals fail to report to their employer or authorities, effectively "disappearing" or leaving without the proper legal process. Being marked as an absconder can lead to serious consequences, such as being blacklisted from the UAE, deportation, or facing legal penalties.

In this blog, we will guide you on how to check your absconding status in the UAE, what you should do if you find yourself in such a situation, and how to navigate the legal process.

What is Absconding in the UAE?

Absconding occurs when an employee fails to report to work without informing their employer, leaving without valid authorization or skipping the country without legal documentation. Employers may report an employee as an absconder to the UAE immigration authorities, and this status can prevent the individual from obtaining future employment in the UAE.

Typically, employers may register an absconding report with the authorities when an employee has left their job without permission or has not returned to work for an extended period. If you are an expat worker and your employer files an absconding report, this could impact your legal status in the UAE.

Why Checking Your Absconding Status Is Important

- 1. Prevents Legal Issues: Checking your absconding status ensures that you are aware of your current legal situation in the UAE, avoiding complications when traveling or working in the country.
- 2. Clears Employment Records: If you find yourself falsely marked as an absconder, it's critical to clear your record to ensure you can work legally in the future.
- 3. Avoid Deportation: Being marked as an absconder could lead to being blacklisted by the UAE government, making it difficult for you to obtain another work visa or residence permit.
- 4. Peace of Mind: Regularly checking your absconding status ensures you stay compliant with the UAE's immigration and labor laws, allowing you to continue your life in the country without fear of legal repercussions.

How to Check Absconding Status in the UAE?

There are several ways to check if you have been marked as an absconder in the UAE. Depending on your current situation and where you are located, you can follow one of these methods:

1. Check Through the Ministry of Interior (MOI) Website

The Ministry of Interior (MOI) is responsible for managing immigration and labor affairs in the UAE. You can easily check your absconding status by visiting the MOI's website. Here's how:

Go to the MOI website or use the MOI UAE app.

Select "Absconding Report" from the list of services.

Enter your Emirates ID or passport number and other required details, such as your nationality and date of birth.

The website will show your current status – whether you are marked as an absconder or not.

The website also provides additional options for checking visa status, residence status, and labor card details.

2. Use the UAE Government's "Tawajudi" Service

If you are a UAE resident or a worker whose residency status is linked to your employer, the Tawajudi service, which is part of the MOI's services, can help you track absconding status. To use Tawajudi:

Visit the Tawajudi portal on the MOI website.

Log in using your Emirates ID.

You will see information regarding your status in the UAE, including your employment status and whether your employer has reported you as an absconder.

This service is useful if you've recently left an employer or if you're experiencing issues regarding your employer's action.

3. Check Via the Dubai Police Website

If you're based in Dubai, you can also check your absconding status through the Dubai Police website:

Visit the official Dubai Police website.

Look for the "Absconding Report" service.

Enter your passport number and other personal information.

The system will show whether you are flagged as an absconder.

Alternatively, you can also download the Dubai Police app to check your status conveniently.

4. Visit the Labor Ministry (MOHRE) Office

If you're still unsure about your absconding status, or if the online resources are not working, you can physically visit the Ministry of Human Resources and Emiratization (MOHRE) office.

They can provide information regarding your employment status, including whether you have been reported as an absconder.

Visit the nearest MOHRE office in your Emirate.

Provide your Emirates ID or passport and explain your situation.

The authorities will provide you with detailed information on your current status and any actions you need to take.

5. Check With the Employer

In some cases, the issue may simply be an internal misunderstanding or delay on the employer's side. It's advisable to directly reach out to your employer or HR department, particularly if you have not yet left the company or are transitioning out of a job. If the employer has erroneously reported you as an absconder, they can resolve the issue with the relevant authorities.

What to Do If You Are Marked as an Absconder?

If you discover that you have been marked as an absconder, here are the steps you can take:

1. Resolve the Issue With Your Employer

If you are still employed or had a legitimate reason for leaving, try to resolve the matter directly with your employer. They can retract the absconding report with the authorities.

2. Legal Assistance

If you cannot resolve the matter with your employer, consider hiring a legal expert to handle the case. A top law firm in Dubai or a best legal advisor in UAE can assist in clearing your name and helping you navigate the legal complexities.

Conclusion

In the UAE, being marked as an absconder can have severe consequences on your ability to remain in the country or obtain employment in the future. Therefore, it is essential to regularly check your absconding status and take prompt action if necessary. By using the methods outlined above, you can easily check your status and address any issues before they escalate.
